

incident, namely a post-operative infection. (We all know how the bringing of charges against doctors has become a regular practice in the United States, and is beginning here. G.C.)

Dr. Leir had in fact been already notified and aware of this charge - five years ago, but as it had never led to any concrete action against him, he therefore felt convinced that the affair had long ago been settled by the U.S. Medical Board and closed.

Dr. Leir's lawyer, Gregory Avery, who specialises in this sort of affair, explains that in all cases of this kind - that is to say when suspicions are voiced regarding a doctor - the Medical Board's golden rule is always for speedy action: if a doctor (in this case a chiropodist - in the USA termed a "podiatrist") - does not have, or no longer has, the expertise necessary for the proper exercise of his profession, he is, quite understandably, immediately subjected to a general review and scrutiny of his competence.

Well now, in this case the Medical Board waited five years before embarking on any procedure of the examination and evaluation of the competence of Dr. Roger Leir! there is no "normal" explanation for this astounding delay of five years!

But it so happens that in 1999 Dr. Leir was now known for his work in researching and extracting mysterious implants from the human body. Most notably, he had been seen, on February 17, on the NBC Television channel, following the appearance of the book The Aliens and the Scalpel written by him and his colleague Derrel Sims. (Reviewed in FSR 44/4, G.C.)

The hearing against him opened on February 16, 2000, and during it, he was not permitted to speak or even to communicate with the Court in writing! The judge delivered his verdict on April 23: Dr. Leir was to be "put on probation" for three years.

Dr. Leir is not a young man, the shock of this sudden impugment of his professional competence, added to the normal fatigue engendered by his heavy work-load, resulted, on May 24, 1999, in a heart attack, which put him in hospital. (He had already had some heart trouble in 1985.)

The consequence has been that, in a particularly critical period (with all the problems, notably family problems, and financial worries too) his research on implants has clearly had to be halted.

So here, dear FSR reader, in the cases of Dr. Boylan and Dr. Leir, you have something on which to reflect deeply. The offence of Dr. Boylan is that he investigates UFOs. The offence of Dr. Leir is that he finds - and publicizes - body implants from UFOs.

Are these not just two more wondrous examples of the machinations and the devilry of that corrupt and evil Power which controls this entire world and all of us, and that has the whole of "anaesthetised", sleeping, unwitting, and witless mankind by the throat? G.C.■

THE KHOURY CASE (AUSTRALIA), BY GORDON CREIGHTON.

Every UFO report has something weird about it, but this one seems one of the weirdest yet.

We learn that Bill Chalker, one of FSR's Correspondents in Australia, has recently investigated a highly unusual encounter case that involves a possible alien hair sample.

The sole participant in the case, Peter Khoury, born in the Lebanon in 1964, emigrated to Australia in 1974, and married there and has a family. He owns a business connected with cement production.

FIRST ENCOUNTER.

Khoury says that during the night of July 12, 1988, he was lying in bed when he felt somebody grab him by the ankles and his entire body went numb, paralyzed. He could move nothing but his eyes. [We have heard of this feature in other cases. G.C.]

On the right side of his bed he could see three or four dark-robed figures, 3 - 4 ft tall, who informed him telepathically that no harm would come to him. Moving his eyes towards his left, he found two more beings there who were completely different - tall, thin, of a "golden" hue, with big black eyes and narrow chins. One of these also contacted him telepathically, and told him not to worry and that it "would be like the last time" (sic). This being's eyes seemed to be friendly, almost "smiling", as they say.

They inserted a long needle-like flexible tube into the top left-side of Khoury's head, after which he seems to have blacked out.

Upon regaining consciousness, Khoury leapt from his bed and ran to find his relatives (father and brother) who were sleeping in another room. He awakened his brother and found him apparently "groggy". [Perhaps evidence that, as in so many cases, the aliens had kept the father and brother fast asleep. G.C.]

On checking the time, Khoury found that two hours were unaccounted for.

Next day his wife examined his head and found a puncture. Khoury asked his doctor to look at it, and when he told the doctor of his UFO experience the doctor just laughed at him and ridiculed it.

Months later, Khoury heard of Whitley Strieber's book Communion, and got a copy and read it. He saw that the "little Grey" shown on the cover was identical with the smaller type of the creatures that he had seen.

He joined a UFO study group briefly but found they could answer few of his questions.

SECOND ENCOUNTER.

In the night of July 23, 1992, Khoury had his second experience.

He had been in bed and fast asleep, when suddenly he sat up and discovered two naked females sitting on his bed. (An extremely weird feature is that "he could also see them through the back of his head".)

The nearest of the two females was a big hefty blond, seemingly "in her mid-thirties". She was a head and a half taller than he", and he is 6 feet.

She had fair skin, high prominent cheek-bones, a big nose, normal-sized mouth and lips, a face longer and more pointed than we humans have, and eyes two or three times larger than is usual for humans. She seemed to have normal female breasts and he says she "looked very humanoid, but not human."

Khoury says her hair, half way down her back, was somehow "exotic", and "wispy" and somehow "fragile". [May have been artificial].

The second female was small, shorter than Khoury, and had very straight, stiff black hair that he said "looked artificial". She herself "looked Asian - but too extreme - a bit as though she had been punched in the face by Mike Tyson!"

The next thing was that the big blond grabbed Khoury vigorously and pulled him towards her breast. Clearly, he says, she was extremely strong, "but somehow she seemed to be without emotion"

He resisted her, and she grabbed him again, and then again for the third time, and this time he bit off the tip of one of her nipples and it got stuck in his throat! To his astonishment, he says it "felt like biting a plastic dummy. There was no blood!"

She looked mildly surprised, as if to suggest, perhaps, that that wasn't quite the right sort of behaviour that she expected.

Khoury was gagging and coughing furiously and trying to bring up the piece of her nipple from his throat.

And, when his bout of coughing had ended, he looked around ....AND THE WOMEN WERE GONE!

A GENITAL MYSTERY!

He went to the toilet for a drink of water and also to relieve his bladder for he badly needed to urinate. Then he found that his penis was very painful, because, wrapped tightly around it, beneath the foreskin, was some hair, which he found extremely painful to remove. The hair consisted of two intertwined pieces, the larger one some 10 - 12 cms. long, and "whitish rather than blond, and thin". It did not curl, and was "springy". Not surprisingly, he immediately associated it with the blond woman, though he had no idea how it could have got there.

He at once put the hair into a plastic bag and would let nobody look at it until he could turn it over for DNA testing, to the A.P.E.G. (Anomaly Physical Evidence Group) which he finally did in April of this year (2000)

A.P.E.G. are understood to be a group of professional scientists - all of them choosing to remain anonymous.

An extremely detailed report by them indicates that the blond hair - from whomever it might have come - was indeed pretty strange. Our report states that after surveying the available literature, the A.P.E.G. found it, seems, that only four persons could be identified as having had the same DNA matching, and those four were all of the Chinese/Mongolian racial type which would of course mean individuals of Asian appearance and with black hair.

The case remains highly mysterious for there is of course no way in which it can be proved that the fair hair came from the alien. Khoury of course had had no relations with any other woman, and the test of the sample of his own hair indicated his ordinary European background. (Apparently the analysis of his wife's hair was less easy, as it had been chemically treated by a hairdresser).

Altogether however the testing had shown five differences from what is normal for humans, which means it seems, that while biologically close to normal human genetics, it is of an unusual racial type.

For comparison, says the report, Neanderthals differ from modern humans at 27 locations in the same DNA, while chimpanzees differ from humans at 55 locations. This particular hair had differed at 5 locations.

THE IMPLICATIONS.

Conclusions are difficult because, as emphasised, there is no proof that the blond hair came from the big fair alien whom Khoury claimed to have seen.

We have no evidence as to whether in fact Khoury actually had sexual relations with either woman. Certainly he has no recollection of it, or of having had sex with any other females. And, if the aliens had actually abducted him (probable, given the time loss) there is still no evidence as to whether he had sex with that particular female or with any other of them.

Whatever the details in this respect may be, it seems very evident that these two female creatures encountered by Khoury were not hybrids, but were entirely artificial entities, - robots. If the nipple of a hybrid were bitten off, surely it would bleed!

And we should not forget that Khoury himself had said that the "Asian" woman's hair had "looked artificial" and that her eyes (like glass eyes) had "shown no sign of life".

Khoury said that the object that had been lodged in his throat was suddenly gone after three days, and then his coughing stopped.

Anyone who has had many years of experience in Parapsychology and in psychical research will not be surprised to hear that the mysterious piece of "nipple" should have vanished like this. To me nothing proves more effectively than this the fact that Khoury's visitors were not of this world, but in all probability from another dimensional level.

However, in such cases of psychical materialisation from other planes, one would also expect everything else to vanish mysteriously.

So what about the fair hair? That ought to have finally gone too!■

A 1999 UFO WAVE IN MALAYSIA. © BY AHMAD JAMALUDIN, FSR Consultant (Malaysia and S.E.Asia).

Website: <http://www.geocities.com/foxbat2my/> Email: foxbat@tm.net.my

UFOs do not seem to pay much attention to Malaysia. On average only two sightings have been reported each year. While other nations have abounded with reports of UFO abductions, animal mutilations, and crop circles, not one case of such a nature has been reported here. Much of the excitement therefore seems to be missing in Malaysia.

But on the other hand, as regards UFO waves, this relatively insignificant piece of land cannot hide itself from whatever is coming from the direction of the sky, if that is where they are coming from. It has been observed that the region of Southeast Asia has received a certain amount of concentrated UFO manifestation once every 10 years (plus or minus a year).

There was a surge of reports in 1948 around Indochina and the Philippines. In 1959, New Guinea, at the southern tip of this region, was the choice of these anomalous visitations (1). Then in 1970 a wave of tiny UFO beings and their miniature craft was encountered across the Peninsula of Malaysia (2). In 1979 they made a comeback in a larger size in the Philippines (3). Therefore we expected them to show up again in the 1989 timeframe. However, there were none.

This disappearance from their regular 10 year cycle is suspected to be attributed to the wave area being out over the ocean. Hence there were no sighting reports. If this assumption is correct, then they should have been back in 1999. For whatever reason behind this 10 year cycle, the UFOs were indeed back. This time in Malaysia.

During early April, a lone UFO with bright lights appeared over the village of Tanjung Sepat, the scene of nightly aerial manifestations in 1995, which drew crowds of hundreds of people to the scene. In May, there were already indications that the wave had started. On 5 May, a witness in Kuala Lumpur, the Capital, saw a round object hovering in the sky overhead.

It had 8 dim blue lights on the base. Several witnesses near Baling, further to the north, reported that they had caught sight of a silent UFO with greenish lights loitering over their village early in the morning hours. A few hours before the UFO appeared, a loud explosion like thunder was heard over the area.

According to Mohamad Nor Abdul, 60, the explosion was very loud and strange. It had not sounded like any thunder we are familiar with. Then at 5.20 am, he caught sight of a strange flying object in the air. It was silent but giving out some light. The 1959 New Guinea UFO Wave was also accompanied by thunder-like sounds (4).

The witness described the thickness of the object as about 1 metre in height and its body was greenish-blue in colour. He lost sight of the object as it passed over the jungle.

The next day another UFO was sighted at Ipoh in the evening. A female police clerk, Salmah Hashim, 44, claimed that on returning home from work at 7.00 pm, she and her 12 year old daughter spotted a silent object, red-yellow in colour, circling in the sky. At first she took it for a helicopter.

But on closer inspection, it appeared to be strange. At a different part of the town, another witness travelling in a car with his son spotted a bright object flying near the town's football stadium. The time was around 6 - 7 pm. It could have been the same object or a different one.

A week after the UFO had appeared near Baling, just 50 km further south, the village of Batu Lintang was in excitement when several local residents claimed that they had seen small greenish beings near the village road.
