Por JOHN A. KEEL

Un año después de que había lanzado mi investigación sobre los OVNIS, yo estaba en cero. Mi teléfono sonaba y misteriosos extranjeros me llamaban día y noche para darme mensajes de "la gente espacial". Después me lanzaron dentro del mundo de pesadilla de la demonología. Tuve encuentros con cadillacs negros en Long Island y cuando traté de perseguirlos desaparecían en callejones sin salida. En 1967 me llamaban en medio de la noche para que fuera a "rescatar" a contactos en problemas. Objetos aéreos luminosos parecían seguirme como perros fieles. Los objetos parecían saber a dónde iba yo a ir y dónde había estado. A veces verificaba en algún hotel y encontraba que habían hecho reservaciones a mi nombre. Yo estaba acosado por coincidencias increíbles. Más de una vez me desperté en medio de la noche para encontrar que no podía moverme y una enorme aparición estaba enfrente de mí.

Por un tiempo dudé de mi propio estado mental. Yo una vez fui el peor de los escépticos. Escribí un libro, Jadoo, que denigraba las leyendas místicas del Oriente. Pero cambié mis puntos de vista. Encontré muchos contactos silenciosos y se notaba que todos estaban sufriendo los mismos síntomas fisiológicos y psicológicos. A través de estos contactos, cuyas experiencias nunca han sido publicadas, entré en comunicación con los seres. Cuando un OVNI aterrizaba en una granja aislada y un ovninauta visitaba a un contacto, éste me llamaba inmediatamente y yo conversaba con el ser por teléfono, algunas veces por horas. Esto suena ridículo, pero sucedió. Mis notas, cuentas y otros materiales atestiguan el hecho.

Ahora, en retrospectiva, veo lo que realmente estaba sucediendo, el fenómeno me introducía a aspectos que nunca había considerado antes. Me iban llevando, paso a paso, del escepticismo a la creencia. Cuando mi pensamiento se desviaba y mis conceptos se torcían, los acontecimientos me regresaban al camino correcto.

En mayo, 1967, los seres prometieron a los contactos silenciosos que una gran falla de la energía se aproximaba. El cuatro de junio de 1967 la guerra árabe-israelí estalló en el Medio Oriente. La siguiente mañana, el 5 de junio, sucedió una falla de energía en cuatro estados del noroeste de Estados Unidos. Más tarde en mayo, los seres habían declarado que el Papa Pablo VI visitaría Turquía en los próximos meses y sería sangrientamente asesinado y esto precipitaría los desastres. Semanas más tarde el Vaticano anunció que el Papa estaba planeando visitar Turquía en julio. El pánico cundió en los círculos secretos de los contactos.

Me quedé asombrado cuando descubrí que estos mismos rumores estaban oyéndose en la comunidad hippie de Nueva York. La gente empezó a telefonarme más tarde para preguntarme a dónde iba a ir el dos de julio. Yo no iba a ir a ninguna parte. Me rehusé a unirme al éxodo y Manhattan no se hundió en el mar.

El Papa no fue asesinado ese fin de semana, felizmente, pero yo vi varios OVNIS. Parecían seguirme, y en octubre tuve una llamada de larga distancia con uno que se decía ovninauta. Me advirtió que pronto habría un gran desastre en el río Hudson y que mucha gente se ahogaría. También me dijo que esperara un suceso desagradable cuando el presidente Johnson encendiera las luces del árbol de Navidad en diciembre, implicando que un enorme apagón se produciría en cuanto el presidente conectara el switch.

El 15 de diciembre el presidente Johnson llevó a cabo la acostumbrada ceremonia del encendido del árbol en la Casa Blanca. Puesto que yo estaba esperando un gran apagón, alerté a algunos amigos (que deben haber pensado que yo estaba chiflado) y se reunieron en mi departamento Dan Drasin, el productor de televisión y otro amigo que es oficial de policía. El presidente empujó el switch, el árbol se encendió y la multitud gritó de alegría. Todo salió según se había programado. Los sistemas de energía de la nación no fallaron.

Pero treinta segundos después de que el árbol fue encendido, un locutor de radio interrumpió las noticias con un anuncio de última hora:

—Un puente entre Gallipolis, Ohio, y Virginia Occidental se han derrumbado —dijo sobriamente—. Estaba cargado de tráfico. Todavía no hay detalles sobre el accidente.

Yo estaba anonadado. Había solamente un puente en esa sección del río. El puente Silver entre Point Pleasant, Virginia Occidental y Ohio.

Paquetes de Navidad estaban flotando en las oscuras aguas del Ohio.

EL MUNDO TERMINO ANOCHE. . .

Unas pocas horas después del colapso del puente Silver, al otro lado del mundo, el primer ministro de Australia decidió ir a nadar a su playa favorita. Desapareció. Su cuerpo nunca salió a la playa. Los elementales lo habían predicho.

Algunas predicciones son increíblemente exactas, tan precisas que no hay factores de coincidencia o adivinanzas afortunadas, pero en otras, los ultraterrestres introducen a un bromista.

En 1965, Dino Kraspedon cuyo verdadero nombre era Aladino Felix escribió un libro titulado My Contact with Flying Saucers (Mi Contacto con los Platillos Voladores). Más tarde surgió como un profeta de hechura propia y advirtió de un desastre que tendría lugar en Río de Janeiro. Las inundaciones y desplazamientos de tierra azotaron un mes más tarde matando a 600 personas. En 1966 profetizó que un cosmonauta ruso moriría pronto y en el otoño de 1967 apareció en la televisión de Brasil para discutir el asesinato de Martin Luther King y del senador Robert Kennedy.

DISTORSION Y DISTENSION DEL TIEMPO

Hay muchos ejemplos documentados en los que objetos y seres humanos han sido transportados instantáneamente a grandes distancias por una fuerza sobrenatural que desafía toda explicación. Esta fuerza parece operar fuera de los límites humanos del tiempo y el espacio. En teoría tales fenómenos podrían ser causados transformando los átomos de energía en un rayo transmisible, proyectando ese rayo a un punto distante con la velocidad de la luz, y después reconstruyendo los átomos originales. Algunos científicos piensan que éste puede ser un proceso factible para nuestra floreciente tecnología.

Pero alguien más lo ha estado haciendo por siglos.

Algunos de los mejores libros sobre los OVNIS relatan casos en los que seres humanos fueron repentinamente transportados por el tiempo y el espacio involuntariamente. Períodos inexplicables de amnesia total son un aspecto clave del fenómeno. He recibido más de cien reportes en los que los testi-gos han perdido de cinco minutos a varias horas después de avistar un objeto volador no identificado.

Hay otro tipo de experiencia que llamo comprensión. En ella, el testigo sufre una secuencia de eventos que parecen consumir un período específico. Después descubre que solamente han pasado unos cuantos minutos, aunque la secuencia pareció consumir horas. La comprensión de tiempo es común entre los contactos que piensan que han sido llevados a visitar otros planetas.

No creo que ninguna de estas personas sufre directamente de locura. La evidencia parece indicar que sus mentes son manipuladas por una influencia exterior y que algunas veces su intelecto es incapaz de digerir la información que se les da y su estructura emocional es incapaz de retener su estabilidad a la faz de estas experiencias. Por eso algunas de estas personas se desequilibran por la presión de los acontecimientos, o los malinterpretan.

Lo que esto realmente significa es que alguien o algo tiene en realidad el poder de poseer completamente y controlar la mente humana. Los seres humanos pueden ser manipulados con el poder que es usado para propósitos tanto buenos como malos.

¿Supone que el plan es procesar a millones de gentes y después en una fecha futura hacer uso de todos ellos a la vez? ¿Tendríamos un mundo de santos? ¿O tendríamos un mundo de maniáticos disparándose los unos a los otros desde todos los lugares de la Tierra?

"The euphoric-type experience can sometimes produce a combination of these responses. We have now closely investigated and studied approximately 200 involved percipients. In several cases we were able to isolate potential contactees before their main experiences began. They were kept under constant study and their reactions were carefully recorded and compared."

The following information has been derived from those studies.

"The 'expansion' (1) percipient gradually develops a higher I.Q. and heightened perceptions in all areas. ESP abilities are frequently enhanced. The unconscious mind seems to release all kinds of hidden data into the conscious mind, sometimes through dreams and sometimes through sudden flashes of acute perception. In a few cases it was noted that visual and auditory acuity was also noticeably affected. These percipients were able to see slightly above the normal visible spectrum and were able to hear sounds in the ultra-sonic range. These changes can occur very suddenly, even within 24 hours after initial contact."

The type 2 percipient may briefly enjoy heightened perceptions but this is usually followed by a slow deterioration of personality. "Persons who were fundamentally honest before contact begin to suffer from confabulation. The UFO event dominates their life and they willingly engage in any lie or subterfuge necessary to substantiate their story. Since they are consumed by total belief, they can successfully pass lie detector tests. Specific sensory information is so deeply implanted in their mind that they are able to recite their UFO experiences word-for-word months, or even years, later."

Keel reports that the type 2 percipient "and some of type 1" may develop obsessive-compulsive characteristics and become completely preoccupied with their contact experience. "Such individuals devote a large part of their time to spreading the 'message' of the UFO occupants even though this may lead to the loss of their jobs and the eventual disintegration of their family life. They become 'space age messiahs' and willingly endure ridicule and hardship in order to advance the cause."

These characteristics, Keel points out, can also be found in religious fanatics who follow a vision or profound religious experience.

"On the other hand, the true UFO percipient usually ignores ridicule and skepticism, feeling that he knows the truth and that others will eventually learn it also.

"UFO percipients usually suffer mental blackouts, amnesia, and disorientation in time and place. Additional UFO experiences can occur, sometimes on a daily basis, after initial contact. These events usually taper off within a few months, rarely lasting beyond a year. But they can recur again several years later.

"Contact is preceded by a long sequence of preparatory events which are so subtle that they are seldom noticed by the potential percipient. In several cases we have traced these back as far as five years before the overt contact finally took place. In a few cases, these events began in childhood even though the percipient was not formally contacted until he or she reached adulthood."

Strangely enough the divorce rate among contactees is very high. "Part of the contactee syndrome involves divorcing their present spouse and later remarrying a person presumably selected for them by the 'entities'. In a number of cases, both parties in the new marriage become convinced that they are actually space people themselves. Outwardly, these people are perfectly normal in all respects. Their UFO obsession rarely seems to require extensive psychiatric treatment. The UFO entities become a part of their everyday lives... a very secret part."

Also according to Keel's research "a majority of all UFO percipients are medically sound and not heavy drinkers. In fact, many are teetotalers. Yet chronic alcoholics suffer from many of these same symptoms. After several years of hard drinking there is a distinct deterioration of personality. The hallucinations of delirium tremens are followed by 'Korsakoff's psychosis' which results in amnesia and disorientation of time and place."

Furthermore "the percipient's memory is sometimes overloaded with information to account for periods of time which elapsed during the contact experience. Thus, a percipient may have vivid total recall of a sequence of non-events which seemingly took place while the actual elapsed time was considerably shorter. Memory of these non-events can include detailed sensory information of smell, touch, etc. This is mental hyperbolism; over-programming of the percipient's mind.

"These non-events are often allegorical and may be meant to convey hidden meanings to those capable of properly interpreting the data.

Keel claims that two techniques are employed by the UFO-nauts. "Some percipients are forced to forget their experience by a block which cuts off the memory cells from the conscious mind. Then, as in the case of Betty and Barney Hill, the subconscious may feed this hidden data upward through dreams and nightmares. The only way to circumvent the block is through the skilled use of hypnosis. However, information extracted through hypnosis cannot be trusted.

"Other percipients have the memory cells of the actual experience altered in some manner and false data replaces the true memory. This false data can take incredible forms. The monsters, flights to other planets, etc. may be remembered with absolute clarity and total conviction. These confabulations seem as real to the witness as his memory of what he had for breakfast that morning."

Still fragments of what really transpired can remain hidden deep in the unconscious mind. How to get it out? "Uninformed psychiatrists and researchers usually make the mistake of merely trying to obtain further confirmation of the remembered experience through hypnosis and they do not try to dig for a deeper, alternate sequence of events.

"No contactee event can be accepted on the strength of the percipient's surface memory alone. Paradoxically, total recall of an event may indicate that the event never actually took place. The percipient is able to remember every minute detail because those details were carefully implanted in his memory banks. Witnesses of this type may clearly remember extended visits to the 'caves of the deros' or to the splendid cities of some distant planet when actually their bodies never left the spot where the contact occurred. This type of non-event is most common in Irish 'fairy' lore, occult records, and religious 'miracles.'"

This is not to rule out the possibility that some persons may actually have undergone a genuine physical experience, but Keel maintains that his studies "indicate that most, if not all, percipients suffered mind tampering rather than a real experience. This led to deterioration of personality, insanity, paranoid schizophrenia, and other emotional aberrations."

According to Keel, the highest rate of experiences seem to originate from "non-smokers, teetotalers and vegetarians". Also LSD users have a very high rate and can reveal all of these symptoms.

How are these "non-events" planted in the minds of the percipients? Keel states that "doctors working with alcoholics and schizophrenics have discovered that vitamin deficiencies can disturb the oxidative metabolism of the brain. It is possible that a similar chemical imbalance is present in the brains of the UFO percipients!"

In any event both John Keel and Dr. Bethold Eric Schwarz realize that to find a scientific solution to the UFO problem doctors and general medical personnel are needed in order to give the UFOs and their witnesses the once over. We are in 100% agreement.

Probably many of our readers however, feel that the reality of the UFOs does not lie in any forced "memory block" but what is actually going on involves physical and mental communication with honest to goodness spacemen. They are entitled to their opinions and stand a good chance of being correct.

In this category is UFO expert John Dean (well known as an educator and writer) who several years ago wrote a book titled Flying Saucers and the Scriptures. It was a wonderful book, filled with illustrations and amazing speculation and theory. But something happened. The publisher, for some reason we can only suspect as "outside interference", made no effort to market the book, which was the same as suppressing it.

Dean, who avers he is in contact himself with space people through Bob Renaud and other Earth contacts, early this year received a message from them. He must write a new book, much larger than the previous one, and he was to include a number of color illustrations, regardless of cost. He must go to a publisher who had demonstrated throughout the years that he did not yield to outside pressures and was not afraid to publish the truth about flying saucers.

Gray Barker's SAUCERIAN PUBLICATIONS was picked by Dean and the space people.

This new book Flying Saucers—Closeup is however, not a rewrite or a revision of the earlier work. Instead it is a completely new book, inspired by "the space people through their Terran representatives of the World Alliance", or so Dean says.

This book is either the most authentic and comprehensive volume possible at the present time, or is a gigantic hoax by the UFO-nauts. Some of the 34 chapters include: AIR SHIPS—SPACE SHIPS—PROPULSION—APPEARANCE AND SIZE OF SPACE PEOPLE—HOW DO WE RATE WITH THEM?—AIR FORCE REPORTS—MOON AND EARTH BASES—ENDLESSNESS OF TIME AND SPACE—MASTER LIST OF 75 WELL KNOWN STARS AND THEIR 417 PLANETS—KORENDIAN SPORTS AND ANIMALS—LITTLE PEOPLE—REINCARNATION—THE BIG BLACKOUT OF 1965.

Most interesting of all the space people have an actual plan for you and I which they are revealing in this book for the first time.

This volume is twice the size of any normal book (over 190 8½ x 11 pages) and contains many full-color illustrations which the author claims are inspired by the space brothers themselves.

We can't claim that this book is 100% fact, but it really tells us something, even, if like Keel claims, on a hidden level.

Flying Saucers readers must decide for themselves. We have ordered only a few copies of this volume from the publisher and are offering them at the pre-publication price of $7.95. Copies will be available this year (1969).

Next issue we hope to continue with our discussion of the newest men in black reports. Including a possible report on a new organized anti-MIB group which is just as strange and seemingly sinister as the MIB themselves.

We also would appreciate any reports, photos and comments at our office to use in this column. Our address is still 3 Courtland Street, New Brunswick, N.J. 08901.

JOHN A. KEEL: "Strange Messages FROM F.S."

An Air Force plane spiraled clumsily out of the sullen Argentine sky and crashed near Quilino in August 1957, setting the stage for one of the hundreds of strange UFO "contact" stories that have been going almost unnoticed in newspapers throughout the world for the past 27 years. The Argentine Air Force dispatched three men to the site to guard the wreck until proper equipment could be mustered to haul it back to the base. On the evening of Aug. 20, 1957, two of the men went into town for supplies while the third man lounged in their tent.

Suddenly, according to his story, he heard an eerie high-pitched hum. He stepped outside of the tent and was astonished to see a huge, luminous metal disc hovering directly overhead. In horror, he reached for his pistol but could not draw it from the holster for some unknown reason, he claimed later.

Standing transfixed, tugging helplessly at his gun, the young man heard a soft voice coming from the humming object. It addressed him gently in his own language and told him not to be afraid. Then it went on to tell him that it was an interplanetary spacecraft and that a base for such craft had been installed in the nearby province of Salta (an area where UFO sightings have been reported constantly for the past 20 years).

"We intend to help you," the voice is supposed to have declared, "for the misuse of atomic energy threatens to destroy you." The voice went on to say that very soon the rest of the world would know about flying saucers. Then the bushes and trees began to rustle and the craft shot straight up and disappeared.

The young Argentinian was so upset by this experience that he reported it in full to his commanding officer. The latter took him seriously and passed the story on to one of Argentina's largest and most respected newspapers, Diario de Cordoba, which carried the full account two days later. Linguist Gordon Creighton later translated it and published it in England's scholarly, Flying Saucer Review.

Is this story, and the many others like it, pure hogwash? Or is it possible that the unidentified flying objects are making contact with bewildered Earthlings? In spite of the noisy opposition of several "serious-minded, scientific" amateur UFO investigating groups, the contact stories continue to appear. Like most flying saucer stories, they are rarely noticed by the press, and many of them contain such ludicrous details that they are easy to dismiss—until you realize that the same ludicrous details are popping up in Italy, Brazil, Sweden, Africa, the Soviet Union, the U.S. and nearly every other country on Earth.

Consider the tale told by movie actor Stuart Whitman, star of many films. According to Mr. Whitman, he was trapped in his 12th floor suite in a fashionable New York hotel during the big blackout of November 1965, when he heard "a sound like a whippoorwill" whistling outside his window. He looked out and saw two luminous disc-shaped objects, one blue, the other orange. At least that's what he later told Hollywood columnist Vernon Scott. Then he heard a voice which sounded as if it were coming from a loudspeaker.

"They said they were fearful of Earth," Whitman explained, "because Earthlings were messing around with unknown quantities and might disrupt the balance of the universe or their planet . . . the blackout was just a little demonstration of their power and they could do a lot more with almost no effort. They said they could stop our whole planet from functioning."

No one else in the crowded streets of darkened New York reported seeing those objects and no one else apparently heard that loudspeaker. But Whitman sticks to his story. Why is anybody's guess. He certainly doesn't need publicity. At least not that kind of publicity.

Senor Helio Aguiar didn't seem to be looking for publicity, either, when he spun his strange tale to Brazilian journalist João Martins in 1959. A 32-year-old statistician employed by a bank in Bahia, Brazil, Aguiar not only claimed to have received a message from a UFO, but he took a series of startling pictures to back up his story.

While riding a motorcycle near a place called Piata on Apr. 24, 1959, Senor Aguiar says he observed a silvery disc with a number of windows visible on the dome on top. The underside of this object bore three markings or symbols which were faintly visible in the originals of his pictures but, unfortunately, did not reproduce well. Aguiar stopped his motorcycle, unlimbered his camera and took three quick shots as the object performed leisurely movements overhead. Then, according to Gordon Creighton's translation of the photographer's original testimony, "he began to feel a strange pressure in his brain, and a state of progressive confusion overtook him. He felt vaguely as though he were being ordered by somebody to write something down. It was as though he was being hypnotized. As he was winding the film before proceeding to take a fourth picture, he lost all sense of what was happening."

The next thing Aguiar knew, he was slumped over his motorcycle and the UFO was gone. But clutched in his hand was a piece of paper bearing a message in his own handwriting.

"Put an absolute stop to all atomic tests for warlike purposes," the message warned. "The balance of the Universe is threatened. We shall remain vigilant and ready to intervene."

These are only three of the many stories in which alleged "contactees" have claimed that they received messages explicitly stating that we should discontinue our atomic tests. Each of these reports sounds like sheer fantasy by itself, but when you compare all those collected by patient ufologists the world over, many remarkable consistencies come into view. Even more remarkable are the patterned inconsistencies. The unsung heroes in this narrative are the dedicated researchers who have faced ridicule for years while they soberly investigated and recorded each of these stories and searched for the underlying patterns. The Aerial Phenomena Research Organization (APRO) in Tucson, Ariz., for example, has doggedly kept track of each obscure tale of UFO contact, as has Britain's Flying Saucer Review mentioned earlier. And now, at long last, many of the pieces of this fascinating jigsaw puzzle are beginning to dovetail.

For one thing, it is now becoming clear that maybe these contacts did occur; that maybe the witnesses were not lying or hallucinating after all. Instead, it looks as if they might have been lied to by the UFO-nauts. After all, if a flying saucer landed in your back yard and a man in a space suit got out and told you he was from Venus you would hardly argue the point with him. You would probably tell your friends and the press that "a flying saucer from Venus landed in my backyard." They might not believe you—they would probably avoid you from that day on—but you would have no reason to disbelieve your visitor. Or would you?

The UFO messengers have been feeding us information—and mis-information—for years. They have spread many a bold and barefaced lie, all of which were dutifully recorded by the "contactees." Perhaps these lines were deliberately passed on to witnesses who stumbled across the strange craft because the UFO-nauts knew that when the lies were exposed the witnesses' whole story would be discredited.

Since 1897 more than 2,500 contact stories have been published and in recent years a handful of researchers have returned to old newspaper files to painstakingly survey and study this mass of data. Some of their findings are as incredible as the stories themselves.

During 1896-97 there were sightings all over the world of giant dirigible-like aircraft (this was before we had managed to get out own dirigibles aloft), and men like Dr. Jacques Vallee, Jerome Clark, and Lucius Farish have spent many a weary hour in musty libraries piecing together the hundreds of reports published in the newspapers of that period. Most astonishing of all, there were many "contacts" during that historic UFO "flap" and many of the details gibe uneasily with the modern contactee tales.

Some of those pioneer "contactees" were pretty impressive characters. Judge Lawrence A. Byrne of Texarkana, Ark., for example was described as a man "who is known here for his truthfulness" by the Daily Texarkanian reporter who recounted his weird story in the Apr. 25, 1897 edition of that journal.

"I was down on McKinney bayou Friday afternoon looking after the surveying of a tract of land," the Judge is quoted as saying, "and in passing through a thicket to an open space, saw a strange-looking object anchored to the ground. On approaching I found it to be the 'airship' I have read so much about of late. It was manned by three men who spoke a foreign language, but judging from their looks, I would take them to be Japs. They saw my astonishment and beckoned me to follow them, and on complying, I was shown through the ship."

The Judge went on to a "studied" description of the interior of the craft and attempted to explain machinery which he saw but could not quite understand. The interesting thing about his story is his description of the "Jap" pilots—men of slight stature, dark skin, and Oriental features. Identical descriptions have cropped up again and again in the stories of other contactees throughout the world. Even the famous story of the "abduction" of Betty and Barney Hill includes similar descriptions. Perhaps some of the flying saucers actually are operated by such beings.

In March and April of 1897 there were hundreds of other "airship" stories from all parts of the country. But in December, 1896, one J.A. Heron, an electrician in San Jose, Calif., told reporters that he was also taken aboard one of the craft and that "it rose very high in the air, and then went westward until it reached Honolulu. Here it turned and sailed back to the starting point, the trip having been made during one night." Mr. Heron's story parallels the numerous modern contactee tales of brief trips aboard flying saucers which covered hundreds, or even thousands, of miles in a short span of time.

Large crowds in Chicago and Omaha viewed overflights of these craft in April 1897, and on April 15th one of the objects reportedly landed outside of Springfield, Ill. Two farmhands, Adolph Winkle and John Hulle, signed affidavits swearing that they had chatted with the occupants—two men and one woman. They were told that a full report would be given to the government "when Cuba is declared free." (The Spanish-American war over Cuba was then in the making.)

On April 22nd, a "well-known Iron Mountain railroad conductor" named Capt. James Hooton told of encountering a grounded UFO near Homan, Ark. "There was a medium-sized man aboard," Hooton told a scribe from the Arkansas Gazette, "and I noticed he was wearing smoked glasses. He was tinkering around what seemed to be the back end of the ship, and as I approached I was too dumbfounded to speak. He looked at me in surprise, and said: 'Good day, sir, good day.' I asked: 'Is this the airship?' and he replied: 'Yes, sir,' whereupon three or four other men came out of what was apparently the keel of the ship."

"Captain Hooton gave a detailed description of the craft and made a sketch of it for the Gazette. It was a cylindrical object with a windowed cabin below and a strange complex of movable vanes on top.

Two law officers, Deputy Sheriff John McLeMore and Constable John J. Sumpster of Hot Springs, Ark., suffered a considerable amount of ridicule after they solemnly filed the following affidavit:

"While riding northwest from this city on the night of May 6, 1897, we noticed a brilliant light high in the heavens. Suddenly it disappeared and we said nothing about it, as we were looking for parties and did not want to make any noise. After riding four or five miles through the hills we again saw the light, which now appeared much nearer the Earth. We stopped our horses and watched it coming down, until all at once it disappeared behind another hill. We rode on about half a mile further, when our horses refused to go further. About 100 yards distant we saw two persons moving around with lights. Drawing our Winchesters—for we were now thoroughly aroused by the importance of the situation—we demanded: 'Who is that, and what are you doing?' A man with a long dark beard came forth with a lantern in his hand, and on being informed who we were proceeded to tell us that he and the others—a young man and a woman—were traveling throughout the country in an airship. We could plainly distinguish the outlines of the vessel, which was cigar-shaped and about 60 feet long, and looking just like the cuts that have appeared in the papers recently. It was dark and raining and the young man was filling a big sack with water about 30 yards away, and the woman was particular to keep back in the dark. She was holding an umbrella over her head. The man with the whiskers invited us to take a ride, saying that he could take us where it was not raining. We told him we believed we preferred to get wet.

denizens and spacecraft from thousands of worlds, all united in one project but each carrying out its part in its own way.

The reader's mind of course will immediately leap ahead and see that the puzzle of why all UFOs and occupants are different is no longer a puzzle. All the jigsaw pieces fall into place by themselves. In fact, it is that very diversity of craft, occupants, clothing, and speech that makes extraterrestrial theory a necessity in order to explain the UFO phenomenon.

Finally, let us listen to the message one contactee reportedly received from his UFO-naut hosts: "We are not alone. We have space brothers who are here to reach us and teach us. They are preparing us to join the Federation of Planets."

Almost all the contactees report similar messages from the spacemen, informing earthmen that membership awaits us in the Brotherhood of Worlds . . . the Universal Community of Peace . . . the United Civilizations . . . they have many names but only one meaning. We have tended to be skeptical of the "utopian" messages relayed by the contactees from the spacemen—but should we be? Perhaps the very words we thought were only the preachings of self-appointed and deluded "messiahs" are actually genuine admonitions from a vast community of worlds far wiser than we are, is it the skeptics who are "deluding" themselves?

The briefer "contact" reports often bring up concise references to a "United Worlds" organization. As reported by UFOlogists Jim and Coral Lorenzen in their book UFOs Over the Americas, Senor C.A.V. of Lima, Peru, claimed to have a rather lengthy discussion with UFOnauts who actually asked—"Let us speak to your chief." When C.A.V. pointed out that it was rather difficult to arrange appointments with presidents or premiers, the aliens revealed that they came from a distant star; that their propulsion system obtained energy from stellar radiation, allowing them to cross space easily; that they are "gods" or were called such by earthmen at one time; that they were eternal beings, having conquered disease and death; and implied that Earth people too would someday achieve a "utopian" state with the aid of benign brother worlds.

C.A.V. did not ride in their flying saucer, nor write a book about his experience, and was proclaimed psychologically "normal" by doctors.

All other questions about UFOs have answers inherent in the extraterrestrial theory. The great number of UFOs (a million or more sightings estimated to have been made around the world)? It is simply the result of many millions of worlds with billions of spacecraft, visiting countless worlds like our own.

UFOlogists, as well as skeptics, have often wondered why whole formations of UFOs should even visit our tiny, insignificant planet. The answer is simple: because it is the "Space Peace Corps" job to assist the most backward worlds that need the most help.

We may rest our case, so to speak, with a noble thought. If this hypothesis is true, then the future holds a shining and exalted promise when Earth is entered in the roster of the United Worlds and its millionfold membership of civilized planets that have long achieved lasting peace and a heavenly way of life. ★ THE END

"Asking the man why the brilliant light was turned on and off so much, he replied that the light was so powerful that it consumed a great deal of his motive power. He said he would like to stop off in Hot Springs for a few days and take the hot baths, but his time was limited and he could not. He said they were going to wind up at Nashville, Tenn., after thoroughly seeing the country. Being in a hurry, we left and upon our return, about 40 minutes later, nothing was to be seen. We did not hear or see the airship when it departed.

"Subscribed and sworn to before me this 8th day of May 1897.

"C. G. Bush, J.P."

Were the two lawmen hallucinating? If so, then an Arkansas Senator named Harris was suffering from the same kind of pipe dreams. At 1 a.m. on the morning of Apr. 21, 1897, Senator Harris claimed that the airship landed on his property near Harrisburg, Ark., and that he had caught the occupants drawing water from his well. He said that there were four people on board. Two young men, a woman, an elderly man with a "a heavy set of dark, silken whiskers, which hung down near his waist . . . He had jet black eyes and a deep, firm expression." Researcher Lucius Farish uncovered the complete account in the Apr. 23, 1897, edition of the Harrisburg Modern News.

Another airship is supposed to have landed outside of Waterloo, Ia., at 3:50 a.m. on April 17th with a single man on board and, according to the Drew County Advocate of April 20th, "thousands of people are congregated about the strange visitor, and questioning the navigator." There are no further details on that one, but the Nashville News of April 28th told of another landing which was seen by one of our prominent citizens. . . . There was said to be a most beautiful lady aboard the ship and the gentleman referred to is said to have conversed with her for a few moments."

Several other contactees throughout the country contradicted each other by claiming that the UFO occupants had told them that the airship was the product of inventors based in several different sections of the nation. Either they were all lying or they had all been lied to. The fact remains: thousands of people did see something in the skies during those months and many photographs were taken. Scores of honest citizens carefully filled out and signed sworn affidavits about their sightings. One of the most celebrated of these was a farmer named Alexander Hamilton of Vernon, Kans. who not only signed a statement testifying that he and his family had seen the airship at 10:30 p.m. on the night of Apr. 19, 1897, but that it had stolen one of his cows in front of their eyes. Then Mr. Hamilton got 11 of his town's most prominent citizens to sign an affidavit swearing to his fine reputation and truthfulness. Hamilton declared that the airship had a glass undercarriage "occupied by six of the strangest beings I ever saw. There were two men, a woman and three children. They were jabbering together but we could not understand a syllable they said."

It is apparent that at least three different types of beings were operating these airships: normal people who looked like ourselves; the Oriental-looking characters allegedly seen by the Arkansas Judge; and the strange indescribable entities seen by Alexander Hamilton and his family. Modern contactees continue to report these same contradictions. Some describe tiny men in space suits, others give elaborate details of tall bug-eyed giants, and still others tell of Oriental-types and of tall, beautiful blondes. Many have described seeing women in the crews. Some have even claimed to have relations with these women.

Dr. Carl Sagan, the Harvard astronomer who takes a skeptical position regarding the UFO phenomenon wrote: "UFOs have been described variously as rapidly moving or hovering; disk-shaped, cigar-shaped, or ball-shaped; moving silently or noisily; with fiery exhaust, with no exhaust whatever; accompanied by flashing lights, or uniformly glowing with a silvery cast. It is immediately clear that all UFOs do not share a common origin." [author's italics]

We can ask, did UFOs from several different sources visit the Earth in 1897? When all of the hundreds of clippings of that period are reviewed it is obvious that more than a single "airship" was involved. They appeared over many areas all at approximately the same time, and if we can accept the descriptions of the many witnesses these "airships" were widely varied in size and construction, just as the modern "flying saucers" seem to be. And some of those "airships" appeared to linger for days or even weeks in the same vicinity, just as modern UFOs reportedly return night after night to the same spot for several days running.

Apparently the 1897 operation was carefully planned and skillfully executed. Some deliberate contacts were made and the contactees were given contradictory information to lend confusion and ridicule to the reports. If we are to believe these stories, then we must believe that the UFO pilots already knew a great deal about us, our languages, and our geography. They were also keenly aware of the world situation at the moment and they never once led anyone to believe that they might be extraterrestrial. In fact, those newspapers which did not scoff at the flood of "airship" stories were convinced that some unknown "inventor" was behind the whole thing. Several large dailies actually spent a lot of time and money trying to find out who that "inventor" was and how he had managed to build such a fantastic machine in secrecy. One group of contactees were told that the parts for the "airship" had been manufactured in different sections of the country and then assembled secretly in Boston or Iowa or California. You can take your pick.

Clearly, the UFOs of 1897 went through elaborate lengths to conceal the truth about their origin. They told many people many different things so, in the end, they really told us nothing. Communications were still rather slow in those days and there was no organized attempt to keep tabs on the appearances of the "airship." It was relatively easy to make everyone believe that only one craft was being used and that it was making a leisurely jaunt across the U.S. And, most important, it was simple to convince all the "airship" witnesses that they were seeing nothing more than a remarkable new and secret invention.

The majority of amateur UFO buffs enthusiastically collect clippings about housewives seeing funny lights in the sky but sneer at all the contact stories that come along. This author was vehemently anti-contactee when he first plunged into the UFO mystery. Then a series of astounding discoveries were made which forced him to reconsider the whole contactee issue. First of all, there is an impressive number of relatively unknown and unpublicized contactee stories; secondly, many of these contactees have revealed identical details over the years. If we are ever going to get to the bottom of this mystery, we must carefully consider all of these stories.

"... The inhabitants of your planet will upset the balance if they persist in using force instead of harmony ..."

A common complaint among skeptics and self-styled "scientific ufologists" is: why don't they contact us? The startling truth is that "they" have been contacting us frequently and over many centuries. It's true, of course, that they have never landed on the White House lawn or hovered over the Empire State Building. But they have done many things that were almost as dramatic and have gone almost unnoticed. If we can believe anything in this wealth of contactee material, they have also told us a great deal about ourselves—and about themselves. The only reason there is a mystery to this UFO business at all is because the press has a negative attitude toward contactee stories and some of the amateur UFO organizations have battled long and hard to keep these stories from gaining public or official recognition.

UFO occupants often pass along information about wars and crises crucial to the period. In 1897, the war in Cuba was mentioned. During the 1950s, when everyone was digging bomb shelters in their backyard, contactees were warned about the danger of atomic war. In more recent years the UFO messages have taken an awesome new turn: today they are warning us of an impending global disaster—the end of the world!

Can we take this new wave of messages seriously? Or are we simply dealing with some kind of undefined global hysteria, a psychological phenomenon of some kind?

In his book, Flying Saucers—Serious Business, the late Frank Edwards discussed the huge flying saucer "flap" that overtook the Kazakstan region in the Soviet Union in 1962: "Recently the Soviet government sent a veritable army into the villages and settlements in that area to try to 'explain,'" Edwards quoted Soviet expert Paul Voronaeff as saying. "These flying saucers had resulted in a widespread religious revival and a return to God . . . the last thing the Communists wanted. The flying saucer phenomenon was being interpreted by the natives of that region as some sort of warnings by supernatural beings of an impending catastrophe—the end of the world."

New contactees from one end of this planet to the other are beginning to mutter unhappily about the forthcoming end. In the spring of 1967, the same kind of hysteria was beginning to build up in sections of West Virginia where UFO sightings were becoming fairly commonplace. The problem of unidentified flying objects is so complex and confusing that many people cannot begin to cope with it. Those with a scientific turn of mind look for a simple answer in the widely-held view that these things are nothing more than vehicles piloted by intelligences from another planet. The devout turn to the Bible for explanations of what they have seen—or thought they saw.

Another thing that has puzzled ufologists is the dearth of UFO reports during rainy weather and heavy overcasts. A contactee in England may have inadvertently learned the reason for this in 1957—if we are willing to believe his wild story of a ride in a flying saucer. His name is James Cook of Runcorn, Cheshire and he insists that he saw a strange luminous object in the sky at 2:15 a.m. on the morning of Sept. 7, 1957. While he watched in fascination the object changed colors from blue to white, then blue again, and finally to a dark red. It settled to the ground only a few feet from him and he claims, a voice addressed him, inviting him aboard. A ladder descended from the object and the voice instructed him: "Jump onto the ladder. Do not step onto it. The ground is damp."

He obeyed and jumped onto the ladder and entered an empty chamber illuminated by a dazzling light from some unseen source. The voice then told him to take off his clothes and put on the plastic-like coveralls which were in the chamber. Again, he did as he was told. After he had changed his clothes he was asked to leave the craft and enter another one that had landed nearby. There he found 20 people, all of them much taller than he was, and they took him for a ride into outer space. Their craft could not operate in damp weather, they allegedly explained to him, apparently because they were surrounded by some kind of electrified field. They also told him that the saucers were used only in the vicinity of the Earth and could not operate in outer space.

"The inhabitants of your planet will upset the balance if they persist in using force instead of harmony," Cook claims he was told. "Warn them of the danger."

"Nobody will listen to me," he says he protested.

"Or anyone else either," one of the "spacemen" snapped.

Cook was deposited several hours later in the very spot where he had been first picked up. He related his story to the authorities and then quietly returned to his garden in the English countryside. Like the majority of all known contactees, he did not write any books or go on any lecture tours.

Miss Thelma Roberts of the Flying Saucer Review interviewed Mr. Cook and he showed her a burn on the back of his left hand and told her he had received it when he had left the saucer and had failed to remove his hand from the ladder's railing before his feet touched the ground.

A lot of people have been believing such stories since the late George Adamski came up with his tale of meeting a tall, blonde Venusian on the desert near Mount Palomar in 1952. A lot more have, of course, laughed uproariously over such yarns.

Are these contactee stories the product of neurotics and psychopaths? The author has interviewed over a score of little-known contactees and has discovered some bewildering patterns. Most of those people interviewed were men and women with very low I.Q.'s and very little education. Their imaginations were very limited and they had read no science-fiction. (Until recently UFO books and flying saucer literature was quite scarce and not generally available to such people anyway.) Usually people in this group have an identity problem. They are nobody and they have absolutely no chance of ever becoming somebody. Often they lean toward belief in the occult and the pseudo-sciences in their search for self. They are, in short, highly gullible and a perfect set-up for any plan which promises to make them somebody. They are also ready to accept anything they might be told. They are not liars or fabricators but they are natural victims for those who are liars and fabricators.

If a flying saucer were to stop one of these people, they would be apt to believe anything they were told. And because the "contact" would suddenly make them somebody in a world that hardly knew they existed, they would be eager to please and would willingly carry out any mission asked of them. Furthermore, not many people would believe them when they told their incredible stories.

The patterns revealed in centuries of sightings and contacts certainly indicates that the UFOs do not want their presence known. So maybe when they required information about us, or had specific chores which necessarily had to be performed by terrestrials, they somehow deliberately selected individuals in this unfortunate group. Later, when such contactees went running to the press or appeared on radio and television, they merely made fools of themselves. Nobody believed them. Nobody would ever believe them. The UFOs and their secrets were safe.

Suppose some of these contactees were telling the truth and were not just fakes, phonies and publicity seekers? What kind of "truth" have they told us? In recent years we have been told that the saucers come from unknown planets named Clarion, Maser, Schare, Blaau, Tvthan, Korendor, Orion, Fowser, Masar, Zomdic, and a dozen other strange places. There are also contactees who talk freely about the people of Venus, Mars, Jupter, Uranus, Saturn and the Moon.

Chances are excellent that the flying saucers do not come from any of these places, any more than the great "airships" of 1897 came from secret "inventors" in Nebraska. These names are plants, not planets. Whatever the UFOs are up to, they are doing it on a very large scale all over the Earth and it is inevitable that they should accidentally come into contact with some of us from time to time. When such contacts occur, they deliberately hand out ridiculous, false information. It is time that we got wise to this simple psychological stunt. They've been pulling it on us for centuries.

"They" have been buying time with our stupidity. To allay the possible suspicions of the believers, the UFO occupants have also been spreading messages of peace and many of the cultists refer to them happily as the "Brothers from Outer Space." Let us remember that a Japanese Peace Mission was sitting in the waiting rooms in Washington while Japanese bombers were on their way to Pearl Harbor.

There is, however, another side to this coin. It could be possible that some of the groups involved in the UFO phenomenon are not allied. They might even be competing in some way. There might be "good guys" and "bad guys." The "good guys" might be trying to warn us while the "bad guys" try to deceive us and set us up as the "marks" in some cosmic chess game.

While wandering around the countryside investigating UFO reports, the author has encountered still another type of contactee. These are truly "silent contactees"—ordinary people who have undergone such incredible experiences that they do not even tell their neighbors about them. They are hard to find, but once you have met one you can learn to spot the others. They all tell the same story, for they have all undergone basically the same kind of adventure and none of their stories have ever been published. None of the important details are known, not even to the hardcore UFO buffs who busily circulate mimeographed newsletters filled with rumor. These "silent contactees" are a separate phenomenon. There is no one they can turn to, for even when they do dare to approach the authorities they are laughed at.

For example, in a little Ohio town the author uncovered a strange case involving a professional woman who lived alone in a house on the outskirts. One night she was walking home from work when a luminous object appeared above the trees and landed near her. Two medium-sized men got out and approached her. They wore luminous coverall garments but their faces were clearly visible and were dark and Oriental-like. She fainted and when she came to they were gone.

A few weeks later she was walking down a street in the town when she suddenly saw the same two men! She was sure of it—their faces were etched in her mind. They were wearing black caps and black jackets over their coveralls. For some reason, she had the feeling that they were evil and they terrified her. She ran into the local police station babbling that, "Two men from a flying saucer are walking down Main Street!" Naturally, the police laughed at her. Since then she has had a series of other frightening experiences but has prudently kept her mouth shut about them.

Like so many others, she is living in a state of constant fear and there is no one she can turn to.

There may be thousands of "silent contactees" all over the world today. Thanks to the unending ridicule and disbelief that has been applied to such stories during the past 70 years, we may never hear of most of them. Others, a mere handful, make a frantic effort to tell somebody through anonymous letters to newspapers and anonymous phone calls to ufologists.

Here is such a letter. It may be pure crackpotism, then again it may be a sincere cry in the wilderness. It was published in a New York newspaper.

"Please read this whole letter, without stopping, no matter how unusual or unbelievable it may seem to you. Every word written here is absolutely true, and our futures will depend on how you react to it. . . . Today I have learned (sic) that there really are flying saucers, for I spent six hours circling the Earth at fantastic speed. I have seen and been in contact with actual living beings, somewhat similar to our own race, incidentally, who come from a solar system whose sun we have not yet seen and who have been exploring the universe for over 300 years!

"They tell me that this is the forty-ninth planet on which they have found beings advanced enough to overcome the law of gravity, and therefore be on the threshold of space travel. But the most important thing they tell me, the thing that is driving me out of my mind and forces me to write this letter, is that they are now trying to decide whether or not to destroy us!

"They say that every other race as technologically advanced as we are has long
