131. CONTACTEES BEFORE 1952

The term "contactee" originally referred to a small group of individuals who in the 1950s claimed a direct contact with the space people that piloted the flying saucers. These contacts usually contained many psychic elements (telepathy, psychokinesis, dematerializations) as well as a religious or an ethical message.

However, for at least 200 years before George Adamski's first contact in 1952, various people have claimed contact with extraterrestrials and their accounts bear a strong resemblance to the later saucer contactees. While spacecraft are present or at least implied in most of the accounts after 1952, they are not integral to the contact because communication with the aliens is usually by telepathy. Before 1952 UFOs are almost completely absent, with visits to or from other planets accomplished through an out-of-body experience.

Most of these early accounts confined their contacts to beings from Mars (11028, 11036, 11083-84), with only a few from Venus (11020) or other remote, nameless worlds (10024).

One of the first writers to claim an extraterrestrial contact was the Swedish mystic Emanuel Swedenborg (11075-77), who described his "astral journeys" to each of the planets known in the mid-18th century. Also included in this chapter are the works of theosophists H.P. Blavatsky (11004) and C.W. Leadbeater (11041-43), who were in contact with the ascended masters, a group of highly evolved beings said to be in control of cosmic destiny. Some of these masters were thought to live on the planet Venus. More recent students of the ascended masters, especially Guy Warren Ballard (10993-11001), claimed contact with these Venusians as well as a host of extraterrestrial masters from other planets and solar systems. Another important early contactee was John Ballou Newbrough, whose book OARSPÉ (11055) was transmitted through him by archangelic beings and described the 24,000-year spiritual history of the earth.—J. Gordon Melton.

132. GEORGE ADAMSKI

The modern era of the Extraterrestrial Contact Movement began on November 20, 1952, with George Adamski's alleged encounter in the California desert with a long-haired man from Venus named Orthon. Adamski soon became the first contactee to achieve national fame. His three commercially published books (11109, 11112, 11134) became best sellers and brought him a following that still flourishes over two decades after his death (11138-65, 11173-74, 11177).

Fame brought Adamski not only loyal followers but determined critics. He was attacked by people questioning his credibility, first by ufologist James Moseley in the pages of NEXUS and SAUCER NEWS and then by former colleagues Jerrold E. Baker and Carol A. Honey (11177). Critics claimed that Adamski had 1) faked his photographs of UFOs and their occupants; 2) used the same phraseology in his allegedly true INSIDE THE SPACE SHIPS (11112) that he had used in his much earlier science fiction book, PIONEERS OF SPACE (11115); and 3) reprinted his 1936 QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS BY THE ROYAL ORDER OF TIBET as his SCIENCE OF LIFE STUDY COURSE in 1964 (11117), substituting the words "Space Brothers" and "Cosmic Brotherhood" where the words "Royal Order of Tibet" had appeared in the former work.

The reaction to a 1979 attempt to conduct a sympathetic appraisal of Adamski by sociologist David Stupple (11191) showed the strong opinions, pro and con, that Adamski could still generate.—J. Gordon Melton.

Sifting out the fraud and fantasy from what George Adamski really believed and experienced may well be impossible. Perhaps Adamski saw himself as a latter-day space prophet—he certainly acted as a catalyst for many other contactees who assimilated his philosophy if not his methods.—George M. Eberhart.

133. CONTACTEES AFTER 1952

Since 1952 literally hundreds of individuals have claimed a direct face-to-face contact with inhabitants of other planets. Although these accounts have very little to do with the UFO phenomenon, the contactees of the early 1950s (Daniel Fry, Howard Menger, Buck Nelson, John McCoy, Ray Stanford) saw their contacts as the solution to the UFO mystery. They published their stories and organized meetings to publicize their beliefs.

At the beginning of the modern contactee era, two separate types of literature emerged. The first had a more spiritualist flavor with space entities resembling disembodied spirits, like the members of the extraterrestrial Ashtar Command described by George Van Tassel and others (11860-64). The second followed theosophical tradition and described masters closely resembling the ascended masters of the I AM movement begun by Guy Ballard. George King (11485-512) was the first in this tradition, later made prominent in the 1970s by Nada-Yolanda (Pauline Sharpe) of Mark-Age (11562-625). More recently Tuella (11842-46) of Guardian Action has united the two traditions by describing the Ashtar space brothers in very theosophical terms.

The contactee movement had religious overtones from its inception and many of the contactees organized religious groups very soon after their original experiences. Among the most successful were those developed by William Ferguson (11380-85), Allen Noonan (11657-60), Ernest and Ruth Norman (11662-716), Paul Shockley (11765-68), and Hope Troxell (11832-41). Ministers such as Gilbert N. Holloway and Frank Stranges added material from their contact episodes to the movements they had previously organized, as did spiritualists such as Enid Brady, Violet Gilbert, and Beti King.—J. Gordon Melton.

Truman Bethurum, Orfeo Angelucci, Daniel Fry, and other 1950s contactees met very human-looking space people who traveled physically in flying saucers. Since the mid-1960s and the development of the U.S. space program, contactees have either consciously or subconsciously de-emphasized spacecraft and received their communications via mediumistic voice channeling, telepathy, or dreams. Brad and Francie Steiger (11786-93) have also introduced a certain amount of Ancient Astronaut theory with their belief that contactees are descended from extraterrestrials who visited earth long ago and now must guide humanity into a new Golden Age.

Essential to an understanding of the modern contactee movement are Brad Steiger's GODS OF AQUARIUS (11787) and Jacques Vallee's MESSENGERS OF DECEPTION (11857).—George M. Eberhart.

134. CONTACTEE BOOKS FROM OUTSIDE THE MOVEMENT

The Extraterrestrial Contact Movement has yet to generate the descriptive and scholarly studies it deserves, even though one sociological classic (12096) was produced from the observation of a contactee group in Oak Park, Illinois. The literature as a whole varies from hostile critics who have made a priori judgments based on little or no direct observation (12095) to some well-done journalistic descriptions (12097, 12104). A brief scholarly treatment is provided by Robert S. Ellwood (12094).—J. Gordon Melton.

Other useful summaries are given by J. Gordon Melton in the UFO Congress proceedings (10072, pp. 378-95) and Jerome Clark in a three-part article in the March, April, and May 1986 issues of FATE.—George M. Eberhart.

135. CONTACTEE PERIODICALS

Like UFO periodicals, the newsletters of the contactees are the link that holds their movement together. Unlike most of the UFO periodicals, the contactee newsletters are difficult to understand unless the reader already adheres to their metaphysics. Short on news and long on philosophy, these journals often contain interminable messages from the space brothers, devastatingly turgid treatises on cosmic hierarchies, simplistic tips on leading a moral life, rambling theological tirades, and occasional political outpourings that tend to be both populist and reactionary. However, they do serve as the only media by which contactees can share their intensely personal, profoundly mystical experiences.
